

D

C Appleseed's work would not be possible without the commitment of pro bono resources by law firms, other organizations and individual volunteers in the District of Columbia. The law firm of Skadden Arps Slate Meagher and Flom LLP generously devoted many hours to assisting DC Appleseed with Solving DC Problems Campaign 2006, including the preparation of this book.

DC Appleseed's Solving DC Problems Campaign 2006 was supported by the John and June Hechinger Family Trust, donors to The Community Foundation for the National Capital Region, and the Public Welfare Foundation's Civic Engagement Fund.

The Service Employees International Union's (SEIU) project called "Since Sliced Bread"—a nationwide call for ideas that will strengthen our economy and improve the day-to-day lives of working men and women and their families—was the inspiration for DC Appleseed's Solving DC Problems Campaign. DC Appleseed is grateful to SEIU for expanding the definition of civic engagement and encouraging other organizations to follow its lead.

Paul McKay and Jason Lyons of Cambigue Design (www.cambiguedesign.com) provided the design genius for www.solvingDCprob- lems.com and this book—all for a fraction of what they could have charged for their work. DC Appleseed will be forever indebted to Cambigue Design for its many contributions to DC Appleseed and its work.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Thanks also to the Executive Office of the Mayor—especially the Center for Innovation and Reform in the Office of the City Administrator—for taking Solving DC Problems Campaign 2006 seriously and pledging to find ways to pursue the most feasible ideas submitted by participants.

Thanks to the Nonprofit Roundtable and the Community Foundation for the National Capital Region for graciously inviting the winners of the Solving DC Problems contest, including the winner of the school contest, to attend their jointly-sponsored Mayoral Forum and allowing the winners to present their ideas to the mayoral candidates.

Finally, thanks to groups that provided the prizes for the Solving DC Problems contest: the John and June Hechinger Family Trust contributed the funds for the cash prizes; the Washington Nationals Baseball Club featured the winners of the student contest on the field at RFK Stadium before a Nationals game this summer; and Johnson's Garden Centers and landscape architects from Oehme, van Sweden & Associates are contributing a learning garden to Stuart Hobson Middle School, which had the highest participation in the school contest.